Barbie Zelizer

Why Journalism Has Always Been Part of Memory’s Landscape

Abstract

This presentation will both sketch out a lineage by which memory scholarship has neglected the centrality of journalism as an agent of memory's workings and address some of the particular ways in which contemporary memory scholarship and contemporary journalism studies converge.